LSE Site Privacy Policy

Your right to privacy is important to us. LSE Executive Education will use all data collected for the executive education course you are taking part in under the contract lawful basis. We will only ever process it in line with your rights. The data will also be used for monitoring purposes.

If you also want to sign up to our newsletter or information relating to other courses, please tick to show you consent for the School to send you this information. You can ask the School to stop sending you this information by contacting exec.support@lse.ac.uk, however we cannot delete the data processed for the course itself.

The data is mainly stored in the UK but will be transferred to South Africa which is where Hubble Studios, the producers of the virtual learning environment, are based. These transfers are covered by Standard Contract Clauses.

Further information on how the School manages personal data can be found on the School's website <https://info.lse.ac.uk/Staff/Divisions/Secretarys-Division/Information-Rights-and-Management/Data-Protection>.
